MRS. GRANT AND GRANT'S TOMB.

MISTAKE THE CORPSE MADE.

The letter which follows was written nearly eleven years ago by the widow of General Grant to the late General Charles H. T. Collins, and, of course, has never been published.

"East Sixty-sixth St., Jan. 9, 1892.
General Collins. Dear Sir:—I wish to communicate through you to the 'Grant Monument Association.' Some weeks ago Mr. Duncan, the architect, who is to build the monument for my husband, General Grant, suggested, whilst showing me the plans of said monument, that my remains should be placed in the same sarcophagus with those of General Grant; this, he said, would save space. I wish to most earnestly protest against this plan. General Grant must have his own sarcophagus and I my casket beside him.

"General Grant's identity must remain distinct. Hereafter when persons visit this spot they must be able to say, 'Here rests General Grant.' Yours most sincerely,

"JULIA D. GRANT."

Mrs. Grant's wishes, thus directly and simply expressed, were respected in the arrangement of the final plan of the monument. Most people, we think, will be touched by her manifestation of a conscientious solicitude for the historic prophecies and a definite purpose perhaps at variance with the natural impulse of the wife.

This is why the chamber in which General Grant rests by the Hudson differs in one particular, so conspicuous that no visitor fails to observe it, from that other impressive tomb near the bank of the Seine.—New York Sun.

It was the traveling man's first trip to that part of Nebraska, and we wished to make a good impression upon the owner of the big general store. The drummer was not long on politics, but thinking that as Nebraska was the home of Bryan, the prospective purchaser would be more or less interested in saving the country, he ventured:

"Well, Nebraska has furnished a great man, a man who runs for the Presidential nomination every time he has a chance."

The storekeeper shifted the liberalness of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and his was a rather sickly smile. "Yes, I guess he has done all or that, but whenever his name is mentioned it reminds me of a story."

"In a little Nebraska town an old man was killed in a railroad wreck. The body was taken to the leading undertaker, and some one said that it was the father of a young man working in the big mill. The supposed relative was hastily summoned and after viewing the remains sadly nodded his head and said that the body was that of his father's. He instructed the undertaker to prepare the body for burial and ordered one of the most costly caskets in the establishment. Later in the afternoon, after the body had been properly prepared, the young man was sent for again to come and see that everything was satisfactory."

"The bereaved son slowly approached the casket, and, after taking a glance, he quickly stepped back. 'Why,' he exclaimed, 'that man is not my father. His chin has dropped and a pair of false teeth are shown. My father had sound teeth.'"

The undertaker was stupefied. After mopping his brow, he summoned courage enough to say: 'Well, I can't help that. I followed your instructions and hold a bill for $250 against you.'"

"Which will never be paid by me," broke in the other. "I can't afford to pay other relations' funeral expenses, and with that he turned around and walked out."

"After a moment's tearing back and forth across the room, the undertaker walked over and, looking down in the coffin, said:

"You blasted old fool, if you had kept your mouth shut you would at least have been given a decent burial!"—Kansas City Journal.

Long distance telephony makes good progress. St. Martin's to Grand has just succeeded in ringing up Nice on the telephone and speaking through. The distance is 960 miles. Telephone lines will soon be opened between London and Brussels and between Paris and Rome.

Stigmund Elford, of Milwaukee, is to write the book for Mascagni's next opera. He was asked to dramatize an Italian story written by the composer twelve years ago, but was unable to complete his work until this year.

S.S. VENTURA ARRIVES

HAS MANY PASSENGERS
FROM THE COLONIES

AMONG THEM ARE MANY WHO ARE PROMINENT IN DIFFERENT WALKS OF LIFE.

The Oceanic Steamship Ventura arrived from the colonies via Auckland, Pago Pago and Fanning Island this morning. She was docked at the Hackfeld wharf at 10:30 o'clock. The steamship experienced fine weather throughout the voyage. She left Sydney September 7 at 4 p. m., Auckland Sept. 11 at 6:05 p. m., Pago Pago, September 15 at 7:05 a. m., and Fanning Island, September 19 at 11:05 a. m. The following time was made: From Sydney to Honolulu 15 days, 16 hours and 5 minutes, corrected time; 14 days, 17 hours and 28 minutes actual steaming time. From Auckland, 11 days, 13 hours and 28 minutes, corrected time; 11 days, 5 hours and 31 minutes actual steaming time. From Fanning Island 2 days, 22 hours and 29 minutes corrected time.

The Ventura carries many passengers, notable among whom is Lord Londsdale, who is on a tour around the world.

W. B. Orr is a member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Chronicle, who returns from an exhaustive trip to South Africa and Australia. He is accompanied by Mrs. Orr.

C. C. Campbell, representative in Australia of the Standard Oil company, is on his way to the Coast. Miss Campbell travels with him.

Dr. T. Storie Dixon is an eminent physician from Sydney. He is at present making a tour around the world.

E. H. Lemare is the organist of the famous large organ in Pittsburgh. He has been to Australia trying an organ which is said to be the largest in the world. Mrs. Lemare accompanies him. T. Morton is a prominent mining man from Australia who, together with Mrs. Morton, is travelling extensively. Captain H. P. E. Parker returns from service in the British Indian army.

R. Stevenson is the assisting purchasing agent of the Southern Pacific railroad. He returns from a trip to Pago Pago, accompanied by Misses C. and B. Stevenson.

Immediately upon the Ventura's arrival at this port the vessel's surgeon, Dr. G. Waverly Clark, received a cablegram conveying the sad news of his mother's death. Mrs. Clark had been an invalid for a great number of years.

Purser Buckman reports that on the Ventura's last trip to the Colonies the birthday of Mrs. Leland Stanford, the well known founder of the Leland Stanford Junior University, who was a passenger in the steamer, was celebrated in great style on board.

The event took place on August 25, while the steamship was at Auckland. It was Mrs. Stanford's 75th anniversary and a birthday cake and other delightful accompaniments were furnished for the occasion.

The Ventura brought for Honolulu two cabin, 3 second cabin and one steerage passenger. For San Francisco she has 41 first cabin, 62 second cabin and 23 steerage passengers. She brought 20 tons of freight for this port and has on board 782 tons for San Francisco.

The Ventura is scheduled to sail for San Francisco tonight at 5 o'clock.

In the Irish House of Lords, now the board room of the Directors of the Bank of Ireland, are at present on view two great wooden chests, strongly bound in iron, which are believed to have contained the money with which King William III paid his troops after the battle of the Boyne. The chests were discovered in one of the bank vaults some time ago, and after having been cleared of the dust and dirt of two centuries are now decided objects of interest to visitors.
